Dear History Graduate Student:

Greetings and welcome back. To new students, a special welcome. We are pleased you have chosen to join our program. Our goal is to provide you with a rigorous program of study, reflection, and debate.

During 2005-2006 the Director of Graduate Studies (DGS) in History is Professor Linda Darling, whose office is located in the Social Sciences Building (SSci) Room #231. Professor Darling will guide you in planning your program. Feel free to see her during her office hours or contact her at (520) 621-9754 to make an appointment. I urge you to also introduce yourself to Gina Wasson, Graduate Program Coordinator who is in SSci #215. She can assist you in preparing paperwork, obtaining financial aid applications, and keep abreast of important deadlines.

I encourage you to review your program's plan of study with the DGS at least once every semester before registering. New Ph.D. students will also need to discuss with Professor Darling the Qualifying Review (i.e., developing a graduate plan of study), which takes place during the second semester in residence.

Each graduate student has a mailbox in SSci #217. You should also open a University of Arizona email account. Check your mailbox and email often for announcements and messages.

Again, welcome to the Department of History. I hope you find our graduate program a challenging and rewarding educational experience.

Sincerely,

Karen Anderson
Professor and Head

PLANNING YOUR PROGRAM

As members of the scholarly profession whose purpose is to contribute to the advancement of knowledge and as experts qualified to teach at the graduate level, university professors normally engage in research and writing in their field of specialty. Before choosing your fields of concentration and your major professor, you should familiarize yourself with the work of the various members of the Department. See Appendix A for the list of faculty and their specialties, phone and office numbers, and email addresses. You may want to ask faculty about their research and read their published works as well as enroll in their seminars.

Professional responsibilities limit the number of courses University professors are able to offer, so that occasionally they are not available to teach a particular course when you may want to take it. We try to plan ahead to ensure a balanced program. You should keep in contact with the Director of Graduate Studies and with individual professors to find out when professors may be going on leave and what courses are planned for future semesters. You should also let us know what courses you would like to see offered. Ideally, we work on a three-year course rotation schedule.

KEYS TO SUCCESS

- Review degree requirements
- Consult the Director of Graduate Studies
- Consult potential committee members
- Select an academic advisor in the first year

In planning your program:

- ◆ Read the Graduate College Catalog carefully for degree requirements and list of courses. See Appendix B for a tentative list of course offerings for this academic year. The University's curriculum catalog and schedules of classes are now available via UA Info or website <http://www.arizona.edu>.
- ◆ Discuss your interests with the Director of Graduate Studies (DGS) at least once every semester during your first year of study, preferably before you register. The DGS office hours are posted on the door of SSci #231.

- ◆ Consult with potential members of your committee – the professors in whose field you think you will want to concentrate and who will supervise your work. See them for reading lists, course suggestions, program options.
- ◆ By the end of the first year, each entering history graduate student must choose, in consultation with the faculty involved and the Director of Graduate Studies, a major advisor from the ranks of the History faculty. Students will be paired with individual faculty in accordance with shared fields of interest. For example, students studying Latin America should consult with professors of Latin American History. The purposes of this program are to ease your transition from undergraduate to graduate school and to help you feel more comfortable and secure in the department. Advisors will not duplicate the work of the Director of Graduate Studies. Their role is relatively simple: to make you feel you have a specific professor who can provide general orientation and answer questions about the field, the faculty, and the curriculum. Your advisor will be your resource person, and you may change your advisor if necessary. This arrangement does not commit any advisor to membership on M.A. or Ph.D. committees.

ADVANCED DEGREES IN HISTORY (Effective Fall, 2000)

(Students who entered the program prior to August 2000 may be guided by the requirements in effect at the time they entered.)

The Department of History offers programs leading to the Master of Arts and the Doctor of Philosophy degrees with a major in history.

For an advanced degree with a major in history, students must satisfy the requirements of the Graduate College, as described in the Graduate Catalog, and the requirements of the Department of History, as described in this handbook. M.A. and Ph.D. students should be familiar with both sets of requirements.

APPLYING TO THE PROGRAM

Applicants for the graduate program must have completed the equivalent of a bachelor's degree with a major in history or a related discipline before beginning graduate study. Submit the following:

1. A declaration stating whether you are seeking candidacy for the M.A. or Ph.D.
2. A statement of purpose: indicate your intellectual interests, their relevance to your career goals, and how our program might fit your plans. Specify areas of concentration, and, where feasible, faculty with whom you plan to work.
3. Official Transcripts from previous institutions.
4. Your scores from the verbal, quantitative, and analytical tests of the GRE.
5. Three letters of recommendation.
6. A writing sample (published or unpublished). Required for all applicants. (one sample for the Master's program, two samples for the Ph.D. program).

M.A. DEGREE IN HISTORY

The advisor for all M.A. degree candidates is the Director of Graduate Studies in History (DGS). Each student must consult with the DGS concerning his/her program each semester of the first year of study and at least once each year thereafter. In addition, each student should select a Major Advisor before the end of the first year of graduate work.

M.A. REQUIREMENTS

- 695K Historiography in the first year
- 18 units in the major field of study
- 18 units in 695-696 courses
- 12 units of approved electives
- Reading knowledge of a second language
- Thesis or 2 seminar papers option
- Comprehensive exam or thesis defense

Residence and Credit Requirements

Candidates for the M.A. degree must complete 30 units of graduate work. The average grade in these courses must be 3.0 or higher on a 4.0 scale. Candidates may elect to write a Master's thesis or two research seminar papers.

Program of Study

Of the 30 units required for the M.A. degree, 18 units must be in one of the following fields:

Early European History
 Modern European history
 United States History
 Latin American History
 Asian History

Of the remaining 12 units, 6 units may be taken in another department or transferred from another approved graduate program. These courses must be approved by the major advisor and the Director of Graduate Studies.

Of the total 30 units, 18 must be in 695-696 courses (6 of these 18 units may be taken in Thesis credits instead). Students who do not choose the thesis option must take two 696 courses, where the required two seminar papers will be written.

In fields where 695 or 696 courses are not regularly or sufficiently available, students may meet the 18-unit requirement in the major field (3 units max.), taking relevant 695 or 696 courses in other departments (6 units max.), and taking either a world history colloquium or a comparative history colloquium (3 units max.). Appeals to substitute a 699 in lieu of a colloquium or seminar in the major field will require extraordinary and compelling justification and must be approved in writing by the student's major advisor and the DGS.

During their first year of study all graduate students must take History 695K, the department's course in historiography / methodology. This course cannot count as part of the 18 units required in the fields listed above or as part of the 12 units of 695 or 696.

A student's program shall not include more than three units of Independent Studies (History 599 or 699), unless permission to exceed this limit has been given by the DGS and the Department Head.

Every candidate for the Master's degree must demonstrate a reading knowledge of one second language before taking the comprehensive examination. For details respecting the language requirement, see LANGUAGE REQUIREMENTS AND TESTS.

At the appropriate time each candidate must submit a plan of study form to the Graduate College for approval. Deadlines are listed on the Graduate College website.

By the end of second semester of work, each M.A. student will select an M.A. committee consisting of the Major Advisor plus two other faculty members. At least one of the latter must be a member of the History Department.

Master's Thesis

If you choose to write a Master's thesis, the DGS will assist you in selecting an appropriate advisor within the Department. Your advisor, when satisfied that you have the requisite background and competence, will approve the thesis project and direct it through the stages of preparation. You should write at least a portion of the thesis in a seminar given by your advisor. When you complete the thesis, its acceptability will be examined by your M.A. Committee as part of your Comprehensive Examination.

Comprehensive Examination

The Comprehensive Examination for the M.A. degree will be either oral or written, at the discretion of student's committee. The M.A. examination will be administered by your M.A. committee. Topics for the M.A. exam and fundamental bibliography will be assembled by the student and his/her committee. Oral examinations will not exceed three hours. Normally, written examinations will consist of a 2-hour examination from each of the three faculty members on the student's committee.

Advancement to Ph.D. Program

If you want to be considered for advancement to the Ph.D. program after you have passed the M.A. examination, fill out the department's "Student Petition for Advancement to the Ph.D. Program" form and the Graduate College's "Request for Change of Degree Program" form. Submit these forms to the History Graduate Program Coordinator, who will make a copy for the student's files. The decision on advancement will be made by your M.A. committee and the Graduate Advisory Committee.

Ph.D. DEGREE IN HISTORY

The Doctorate of Philosophy is a research degree. Preparation for the Comprehensive Examination is largely a process of self-education requiring a maximum of course work in residence beyond the M.A. degree. Doctoral students in History must demonstrate scholarly ability, competence in research, and effective use of the English language.

PH.D. REQUIREMENTS

- 695K Historiography in the first year
- 6 semesters of full-time study beyond B.A.
- 36 units of course work in major field
- 9 to 12 units of course work in minor field
- One 695 or 696 course each semester
- Qualifying review and Plan of Study
- Written/Oral Comprehensive examination
- Reading knowledge of 2 second languages
- Prospectus Approval
- Final examination and dissertation defense
- Complete and approved dissertation

Residence and Credit Requirements

The Ph.D. Degree requires the equivalent of at least six semesters of full-time graduate study beyond the B.A. Thirty-six units of course work must be in your major field. You must complete nine to twelve units of course work in the minor field (as recommended by your Major Advisor and Director of Graduate Studies) – nine units if all are at the 600-level, twelve if not. At least half of the units in your major and minor fields must be in regularly graded courses (A,B,C,D,E).

During the terms in which you are doing course work, you will be expected to take at least one 695 or 696 course each semester. Two 696 seminars must be completed before you complete coursework, preferably in your major field. Only in unusual circumstances may this requirement be waived by the DGS and the Department Head.

Historiography

All students must take History 695K during their first year in the program.

Qualifying Review

Select an ad-hoc Advisory Committee no later than your second semester of residency for the purpose of conducting a Ph.D. Qualifying Review. This committee will consist of your Major Advisor plus at least two other faculty members, one from your major field and one from your minor field. The review, which normally will last one hour or less, is intended to assist you in planning your course of study in both the major and minor fields, including language preparation and a tentative timetable for scheduling your comprehensive examinations.

Review Semester

During the semester when you plan to take the written and oral comprehensive examination, you should give full time to review. You may enroll only Supplemental Registration courses.

Ph.D. Major and Minor Fields

Ph.D. Major Fields

Early European History
Modern European History
Latin American History
United States History
Middle Eastern History

The minor field may be any of the above major fields outside your major or one of the following:

Comparative Women's History
Comparative / World History

Or, you may choose a minor in another department as proposed and approved by your Major Advisor and the DGS.

Written/Oral Comprehensive Examination

- ◆ The comprehensive examination tests a student's readiness to teach and to undertake dissertation research. You will be required to demonstrate broad empirical knowledge of your major field, familiarity with significant trends in historiography, and the capacity to participate in the intellectual debates regarding interpretation and analysis that are central to your areas of interest. For the minor field, because programs of study may be more specialized and because students are not expected to have read as widely as in their major fields, students should consult their individual committees for advice regarding preparation and reading.
- ◆ Each student must select a Ph.D. exam committee of at least five faculty members, chaired normally by a senior professor. Choose a mix of senior and junior faculty. Well-constituted committees offer strong academic direction and stability. Apart from the Major Advisor, two members must represent your major field and two your minor field. You must form this Committee by the end of your third semester in residence.
- ◆ Each student must pass a written examination in one of the major fields. The examining committee for the major will be composed of your major professor and at least two others you select in consultation with your major professor and the DGS.
- ◆ Each student must also pass a written examination in a minor field. The examining committee will be composed of two professors in the minor field.
- ◆ Each student who successfully completes the written examinations in a major and a minor field must then pass an oral examination in both fields. The oral examination will be conducted by the student's Ph.D. examining committee, to include three faculty in the major and two in the minor. Normally the oral examination committee will be the same as the written examination committees.
- ◆ The oral examination must be held within 6 months after successful completion of the written examination and in no case later than three months prior to the defense of the dissertation.
- ◆ Consult the Graduate College Catalog for additional information regarding University policy and the conduct of the Comprehensive examination.

Second Languages

A reading knowledge of two second languages is required, except in United States History, where one language is required.

For details respecting the language requirement, see LANGUAGE REQUIREMENTS AND TESTS.

Statistics

Competence in statistics can be demonstrated when appropriate and approved by faculty advisors in 6 units of study, such as Political Science 569, 570A, 570B, with a grade of B or above.

Graduate Plan of Study

At the appropriate time, each candidate must submit a plan of study to the Graduate College for approval. Beginning in Fall 1997, a written plan of study, outlining anticipated coursework and other degree requirements, must be submitted to the Graduate College by M.A. candidates at end of the second semester in residence. General instructions, deadlines and forms for graduation are available via the graduate college at <http://grad.admin.arizona.edu/degrecert/degcert.html>

Admission to Candidacy

A student who has passed the written and oral comprehensive examination and has satisfied language requirements will be recommended for admission to candidacy for the doctoral degree. At that time, you should submit the Doctoral Application to Candidacy to the Graduate College. Approval of the application is required for you to be eligible for certain grants and fellowships offered by the University and other funding sources.

Dissertation Committee and Prospectus

After the written and oral comprehensive examination you will constitute a dissertation committee composed of your major advisor and two other faculty members. If appropriate, you may select someone who did not participate on the examining committee. Arrangements between students and their thesis or dissertation advisors are strictly voluntary. In no case will a faculty member be assigned to work with a student; faculty members may, at any time, accept students with whom they wish to work. The student must decide upon a research topic acceptable to the faculty.

Within six months of the oral comprehensive examination, and no later, you must submit a written prospectus of your dissertation and meet formally with your committee to have the prospectus approved. Approval of a dissertation prospectus also is required by some University units and other agencies that fund doctoral research. The nature and scope of the prospectus will be worked out in consultation with your committee. Generally, the prospectus provides a working title, an introduction to the topic, and a research plan, including the identification of archives, libraries, and collections in which you hope to work. Some faculty may require a tentative chapter outline.

Final Examination for the Doctorate

The final examination for the doctorate is primarily an oral defense of the dissertation, though additional questions related to your course of study may be asked. According to the rules of the Graduate College, the examination is open to the public for the first half hour, and the time and place for the examination are announced in the University newsletter, as well as on the University master calendar. The final examination will begin with a public lecture. The committee is composed of three examiners, normally the members of your dissertation committee, who have been formally nominated by the Department of History. While there is no minimum time required for the final examination, it may not last longer than three hours.

Consult the Graduate College website for important dates regarding the completion of graduate programs, and for formal guidelines you must follow for publication of the dissertation.

You must provide the Department of History with a bound copy of your dissertation prior to receiving your degree.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENTS AND TESTS

The History Department requires reading proficiency in one or more second languages for all M.A. and Ph.D. candidates. Proficiency is achieved when the students acquire the expertise to read widely in secondary literature and undertake original research in another language. The Department standard establishes minimum requirements that must be fulfilled by all students before the M.A. or the Ph.D. Comprehensive Exams. M.A. and Ph.D. Committees may require students to achieve proficiency in additional languages and meet higher standards of proficiency when necessary for individual programs of study and thesis/dissertation research.

Because language proficiency is often a prerequisite for participation in colloquia and seminars, students should be prepared to fulfill proficiency requirements as soon as possible after entering the program. Students who seek to fulfill proficiency requirements in spoken languages that rarely, if ever, generate written texts, may do so with the approval of the Graduate Committee.

The language proficiency requirements can be fulfilled by: 1) passing a written proficiency exam approved by the Graduate Committee; or 2) a written evaluation from the instructor of an independent study or intensive language seminar offered at the University of Arizona documenting that a student has achieved proficiency. Language proficiency requirements fulfilled as part of an earlier program of study by students holding graduate degrees from other institutions count toward fulfillment of Department requirements. Students who enroll in intensive language programs at institutions other than the University of Arizona are required to submit documentation that they have achieved proficiency to their major advisor and, at the discretion of their committee, may be required to pass the written proficiency exam approved by the Graduate Committee.

Language courses do not apply toward degree course requirements in History. Instruction in languages not taught by regular faculty is available through the Critical Languages Program.

Written proficiency exams are offered once a semester. The exam shall be a four-hour test composed of a reading comprehension exercise, in which students answer a series of questions in English, and a translation exercise. Students are permitted to use a dictionary for both portions. All students testing in a language shall take the same exam on a given testing date. The exam is graded in the history department or by an instructor in the appropriate language department.

they see any problems. As a last resort, if they consider your work unsatisfactory, they may recommend to the Department that you be dropped from the program. Remember, you always have the right to appeal decisions by petitioning the Department.

For the M.A. Degree

All work must be completed within a six-year period.

WHEN	WHAT
Each semester of first year	Meet with DGS
First year	Take 695K (Historiography Colloquium)
First year	Select major field adviser
First year	Select M.A. committee
Second Semester of first year	File Master's Plan of Study with Grad College (requires signatures of advisor/head)
Once a year	Major Advisor to fill out Annual Progress Report Form
Once a year (at least) after first year	Meet with DGS
Before taking Comprehensive exam	Pass foreign language requirement
After taking Comprehensive exam	File Master's Completion of Degree form with Grad College and M.A. Performance Evaluation for Dept.
After taking Comprehensive exam	File Petition for Advancement to Ph.D. program with Dept.

GRADUATE PROGRAM TIMETABLES

Keeping to a required timetable is necessary in order to demonstrate that you are making acceptable progress toward your degree. For more information on Graduate College policies and procedures see the Graduate Program Coordinator for a copy of "A Handbook for Completing the Steps to Your Degree" available for both master's and doctoral candidates. You must monitor your own progress but do not hesitate to consult with the DGS and members of your committee at any time. The Graduate Advisory Committee, in consultation with the DGS and your committee, will review your work and let you know if

For the Ph.D. Degree

All work, including work for the M.A. if applicable, must be completed within a period of five years from the date of your oral comprehensive examination.

You must go through the qualifying review and find a major professor before the end of the second semester of your program. You must pass the required language examinations before you take the Written and Oral Comprehensive Examination. You must pass the Comprehensive Exams by the end of the third year of your program if you are a full-time student (or equivalent if you are not a full-time student) unless an extension is approved by the DGS.

Provides a teaching or grading opportunity, a salary, a waiver of out-of-state tuition, a reduction of registration fees, and student health insurance.
- Graduate Tuition Scholarship
Provides a waiver of out-of-state tuition
- Graduate Registration Scholarship
Provides a waiver of in-state registration fees
- Fellowships

FINANCIAL AWARDS

Applications for Graduate Teaching Assistantships, Tuition Scholarships, and Registration Scholarships are due in February. (Specific deadlines will be announced on the listserv). Awards are on an annual basis, so you must reapply each year. The application form is available from the Graduate Program Coordinator and is circulated as an attachment to the listserv announcement.

GTS/GRS

The department has a limited amount of funds available for tuition and registration fee waivers. The GAT award carries with it a waiver of tuition. Every year the department is typically able to award 1 or 2 Graduate College fellowships, which is a grant of $10,000 plus a waiver of tuition.

Graduate Assistantship in Teaching (GAT)

The principal financial assistance offered by the Department of History is in the form of a Graduate Assistant/Associate in Teaching (GAT). M.A. students are funded at the Assistant level; doctoral students with an M.A. are funded at the Associate level, which carries a higher salary.

GAT Duties

Graduate Assistants/Associates are entitled to participate in the Registration Installation Plan that allows the GAT to pay a portion of registration fees on a deferment plan. See the Graduate Program Coordinator to obtain a "Registration Installation Plan for Graduate Assistants" form. Obtain department head signature and submit the form to the Bursar's Office, USB #104.

GAT Appointment

The Graduate Committee, appointed by the Department head and chaired by the DGS, evaluates applications on a competitive basis.

The Head of the History Department awards GATs to full-time students (minimum of 6 graduate credit hours per semester) on the recommendation of the Faculty Graduate Committee, with preference given to students who have the M.A. The number of GATs varies according to the funding we receive. If you are awarded a GAT, you can reasonably expect three renewals for a total of four years, provided that you maintain a high level of performance in your teaching and in your courses (minimum 3.0 grade point average), and fulfill the other requirements for satisfactory progress in your program of study. For example, grades of incomplete in your course work and failure to pass language examinations when required will count against you in your application for renewal. Occasionally we appoint for more than four years, but we must emphasize that renewals are not guaranteed and are subject to the needs of the Department. GATs automatically receive a tuition fee waiver for non-residents; a reduction of registration fees and student health insurance.

If you are employed by another University department, inform the DGS and the Graduate Program Coordinator of this employment immediately. Concurrent employment as a GAT in another department affects the payroll process. Informing the Graduate Program Coordinator of this additional employment in advance of hire will help her coordinate the preparation of your hiring documents and will assure appropriate payment.

GAT Assignments

The Department Head makes GAT assignments in consultation with the Director of Graduate Studies and professors teaching courses with GATs. The Head makes the assignments at the end of each semester for the following semester. These assignments are subject to change depending on course enrollments. You will receive a course and instructor preference sheet which you should complete and return to the Graduate Program Coordinator.

Each August the University runs a one time training session that is mandatory for all new GATs. Immediately following the university training, the History Department provides a mandatory one-day workshop for all GATs in History.

Most GATs conduct discussion sections under the supervision of the professor in charge of the course to which they are assigned. In addition to conducting discussion sections, you are required to attend course lectures and conferences scheduled by the professor, grade the papers of students in your sections, and keep regular office hours.

Other GATs assist professors as graders in heavily enrolled upper division courses.

You will be expected to meet with the professor in charge of the course to which you are assigned to discuss course procedures. If you have any questions about your rights and responsibilities and those of the students in your sections, you should discuss these with the professor in charge. If you still have questions, see the DGS.

Most GAT appointments are half-time, which is calculated at 20 hours per week. For discussion leaders, this means three discussion sections, each meeting once a week. For graders it means grading for up to 120 students. GATs share office facilities in SSci #124A. Donna Watson, Administrative Asst., manages the keys for this office, and the Graduate Program Coordinator distributes desk keys for the TA office.

In compliance with University policy, all teaching personnel are evaluated by their students using the Teacher/Course Evaluation form. Graduate College policy also requires supervising faculty to complete a Graduate College GAT Evaluation form for each GAT.

Criteria for GAT Awards

The Graduate Advisory Committee evaluates applicants for graduate funding on the basis of overall achievement in three categories:

- ◆ Category One: Quality of academic performance, as indicated by recommendations from the major advisor and other faculty, student performance evaluations from 600-level classes in history, and over-all GPA.
- ◆ Category Two: Teaching capabilities, as indicated by letters of recommendation from faculty or past employers, evaluations by faculty whom the applicant assisted and student evaluations.

- ◆ Category Three: Progress toward completion of advanced degree, as indicated by recommendations from the major advisor and/or other committee members and as measured in points as follows:

“Point” System

Pts	Description of Progress
First Year:
2 ea	Pass a second language exam (up to 2 languages)
1	Complete History 695K
2	Complete an M.A. thesis
1	Complete History 696 seminar paper
2	Complete Qualifying Review in second semester of doctoral program
½	Participate in library workshop
Second Year:
1	Form Ph.D. Committee by 3 rd semester of doctoral program
2	Complete Ph.D. Minor requirement
1	Complete History 696 seminar paper
2 ea	Pass a second language exam (up to 2 languages)
Third Year:
3	Complete Doctoral Comprehensive Exam
2	Complete prospectus Review
Ongoing:
½	Read a paper at an academic conference
1	Publish a scholarly article, chapter, or book
1/yr.	Sustained documented off-campus research or training

Graduate College maintains specific criteria for GATs as well, which are specified on the Notice of Appointment, the official employment contract.

Summer Session Employment

Summer Session employment opportunities are available to ABD candidates for full course responsibility. Application for summer GAT teaching positions is competitive. Criteria for selection are similar to the academic year GAT selection criteria. Announcements of application for Winter and Summer sessions are circulated on the graduate student listserv. In consultation with the Director of Graduate Studies, the Department Head will offer summer teaching positions to qualified candidates in late October.

Summer and Winter course offerings are selected by the DGS and the Head and, in general, only those courses that historically draw a sizeable enrollment will be scheduled. The department uses monies generated from summer session to fund general operations and travel expenses for instruction and research during the academic year.

We use the contingency salary formula to calculate pay for all of our summer course instructors. The calculation is: unit cost of tuition X number of units X number of students X 0.60 (not to exceed maximum earnings of $2188 for Graduate Associates teaching a three unit course).

Summer and Winter GATs have full course responsibility including development of the course syllabus, class instruction, and grade assignment. Because of its brevity, any summer session is distinct from a regular academic semester. Several months of lectures, reading, and writing must be compressed into just a few weeks. Summer session is an intensive educational experience.

Department Fellowships

The Department of History awards a number of internal fellowships to qualified students, meant to help support costs of research projects, such as travel to archives or purchase of copies of specialized material. Typically these are awarded to students working on M.A. theses or doctoral dissertations. The amount of the award varies from year to year. The application requires a project description and a budget; detailed information about the application process is circulated on the graduate student listserv. The fellowships include:

The Richard Cosgrove Research Scholarship awarded to graduate students for research.

Sybil Ellingwood Pierce Fellowship for doctoral candidates in the history of the Southwest.

William H. Hesketh Fellowship. The recipient must have passed comprehensive exams and use the money to support research or deliver a paper at a conference.

The Elizabeth Lantin Ramenofsky Graduate Fellowship in Southwest History

The Barbara Payne Robinson Scholarship awarded to graduate students in need of funding for travel and research.

The John P. Rockefeller scholarship for an outstanding doctoral candidate in history with preference for candidates in Western U.S. History.

The Michael Sweetow fellowship. The recipient must have passed comprehensive exams and use the money to support dissertation research or deliver a paper at a conference.

The Edwin S. Turville Fellowship. The recipient must be a doctoral candidate in history, who will use the funds to support completion of the dissertation.

Graduate students are strongly encouraged to apply for fellowship support from foundations outside the University of Arizona as well. Further information, as well as assistance with the search process, is available from Camilla Strausfeld at the Social and Behavioral Sciences Research Institute (SBSRI), Social Sciences 115C.

Additional funding for graduate student research is awarded by the SBSRI; applications are considered in both fall and spring rounds. Details can be found at the SBSRI website: <http://w3.arizona.edu/~sbsri/>

OFFICE OF STUDENT FINANCIAL AID (Administration Bldg. #203)

More information about the University's financial aid can be found at <http://financialaid.arizona.edu/>

Students interested in any financial program administered by the Office of Student Financial Aid must complete a FAFSA (Student Assistance-Financial Evaluation) application. A small fee is charged for a complete needs analysis. Within six weeks of submitting a completed FAFSA application, students are notified of the financial need for which they qualify.

College Work Study

Part-time campus jobs (15-20 hours per week) are available for financially needy graduate students. Wages are commensurate with job skill requirements. Whenever possible, students are assigned jobs related to their educational goals. (Available only to U.S. citizens and permanent residents).

Federally Insured Student Loans

Graduate Students who can meet the credit requirements of a private bank or lending agency may arrange for a low-cost educational loan ($2,500 maximum). Repayments may be spread over a ten-year period with the first payment due nine-months after graduation. (Available only to U.S. citizens and permanent residents).

National Direct Student Loans

Full-time graduate students with demonstrated financial need may be recipients of NDSL. These loans accrue a low-rate interest and are not due for repayment until nine months after half-time enrollment ceases. Repayment may be spread over a ten-year period. (Available only to U.S. citizens and permanent residents.)

Other Scholarships

A limited number of scholarships are available for qualified graduate students. Recipients must meet scholarships standards and donor qualifications ($50 - $3000). Contact the Scholarship office at Old Main #235. (Available only to U.S. citizens and permanent residents).

COLLEGE OF SOCIAL AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES (Douglass Bldg. #200W)

The Department of History is within the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences, which occasionally announces the availability of scholarships or fellowships. Awards usually range in value from $250 to $1000. Copies of these announcements are posted in SSci #217 for review.

The Graduate College maintains a file of various fellowship sources. Students are welcome to inspect the file in person.

Graduate Student Final Project

<http://grad.arizona.edu/multi/finalprojectfund.php>

The Graduate Student Final Project Fund provides support directly to graduate students from underrepresented groups engaged in research (thesis or dissertation) or other creative activities required to complete a graduate degree under sponsorship of a faculty member. UA graduate students, domestic or international, enrolled in a graduate degree program and in good academic standing are eligible to apply.

Dean's Fellowship Program

The Dean's Fellowship Program is designed to support students in the conduct of dissertation research. Graduate students who have completed their coursework, have their doctoral application to candidacy approved, and have their dissertation proposal document approved by their dissertation committee are eligible to apply. Minimum GPA and enrollment criteria also apply. Each fellowship provides an annual stipend of $12,000 and includes a waiver of tuition and fees.

900-Level Graduate Waiver

The Graduate College makes available 900-level graduate waivers that waive out-of-state tuition for graduate students who are enrolled for six units or less of 900-level courses (research, thesis, and dissertation units) and who are not on campus except when they return to defend. Students must submit an email request each semester to the Graduate Program Coordinator for a 900-Level Graduate Waiver.

PLACEMENT

Each student should consult the Employment Information bulletin in the American Historical Association's Perspectives, The Chronicle of Higher Education, and the journal, newsletters, and Internet bulletin boards in your major field for information about job opportunities. The department also maintains bulletin boards in SSci #217 and in front of the TA office of all current job announcements, call for papers, workshops, seminars, conferences and general announcements.

Each fall semester, the department conducts a series of workshops on the curriculum vitae, the letter of application, and the job interview for all students entering the job market. Opportunities to participate in mock interviews are offered, as well.

On occasion, faculty letters of recommendation are filed with the Graduate Program Coordinator and can be mailed upon the student's request. Under these circumstances, each student is responsible for making certain that these letters are current, and for providing written notification of all deadlines for application to both the Graduate Program Coordinator and the faculty who have composed letters.

When you have any questions regarding job applications, please consult your major advisor or the Director of Graduate Studies.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS

Phi Alpha Theta

Phi Alpha Theta is the national honor society for graduate and undergraduate history students. It publishes a journal for student articles and reviews and holds annual national meetings in which graduate students may present scholarly papers. Locally, with the HGA, it sponsors social programs for graduate students. It also sponsors programs of historical interest and promotes student participation in the annual regional meeting and prize competition.

History Graduate Association

The History Graduate Association, organized in 1974, elects a representative who attends and votes, except on personnel issues, in the Department meetings, and elects an HGA representative to the campus-wide Graduate Student Council. In general, the HGA seeks to facilitate professional and social communication among faculty members and graduate students in the Department, and serves as a link between the department and all graduate students. It also helps fund graduate student travel and research. Meetings are usually held once a month.

LIBRARIES

There are two main libraries on campus – the University Library, and the Science-Engineering Library, which also houses the Oriental Collection on the fifth floor. You may also have occasion to use the Special Collections of the College of Law Library, the Health Sciences Center Library, the Center for Creative Photography Library, and the Anthropology Library in the Arizona State Museum. Other collections you should know about are the Regional Genealogical Library of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 500 S. Langley, which gives you access to the magnificent genealogical collection in Salt Lake City; and the library and archives of the Arizona Heritage Center of the Arizona Historical Society at Park and Second.

The University Library, containing several million items, is rated one of the top university libraries in the country. It has especially strong collections in American Women's history, Anthropology, Sociology, Spanish and Latin American Literature, Agriculture, Southwestern Americana, Arizona, history of science, science fiction, and 18th-19th century British and American literature. The University Library is a member of the Association of Research Libraries, and computerized facilities for doing bibliographical searches in member libraries are available. Materials from other libraries are available through the Inter-Library Loan Office (west end of the 2nd floor).

Reference desks are staffed by professional librarians on the 2nd floor. They are available to answer your questions and help you locate materials. Ask them to show you how to use the computer terminals to search for books and periodicals. This can save you a great deal of time and effort. Current newspapers, periodicals, and microfilm readers are on the first floor. For Further information on collections and locations you will find brochures in the lobbies of the main libraries, or take a library tour. Computer searches are also available.

The Oriental Collection houses books, journals, periodicals, and newspapers in Middle Eastern and East Asian languages. The Middle Eastern section contains a total of 30,000 volumes, mostly in Arabic, and newspapers, periodicals, journals, and reference works in Arabic, Turkish, and Persian. The East Asian section, with 100,000 volumes in Chinese and 32,000 volumes in Japanese, is the largest collection in the Rocky Mountain/Southwest region of the United States. The East Asian section carries journals, newspapers and periodicals from the People's Republic of China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Japan. Professional librarians are available in both sections to help you with your specific research needs.

Graduate Application Brochure

OUR DEPARTMENT

The University of Arizona Department of History has a strong research and teaching faculty. Thirty ranked faculty members teach and mentor about 100 graduate students, of whom 70-80 are enrolled in courses at a given semester. Faculty specialties include many fields of U.S., Latin America, European, Asian, and Women's History. We also offer fields in Comparative/ World History. The department is affiliated with several campus research centers (Latin America Studies, Mexican American Studies, Near Eastern Center, Southwestern Studies, and Women's Studies), and with the Arizona Historical Society.

OUR PROGRAMS

Master of Arts: At least 24 units must be completed in history including 18 units in one of the following areas: Early Europe, Modern Europe, Latin America, United States, and Asia. The student who elects to submit a thesis for six units will receive thesis credit for 6 units and will be required to complete at least twelve additional units at the 695-696 level in history. The student who elects to present two research seminar papers (six units) in lieu of thesis is required to complete at least eighteen units at the 695-696 level in history. Each student must demonstrate reading proficiency in one or more second languages. During the first year of study all graduate students must take History 695K, the department's course in historiography/methodology. This course cannot count as part of the 18 units required in the fields listed above, or as part of the 12 units of 695 or 696. Each student must pass a final examination in his/her major field. A total of 30 units are required for the degree.

Doctor of Philosophy: In consultation with an advisor, each beginning student will select a major and a minor field within history. Each student must demonstrate reading proficiency in one or more second languages. All students must take History 695K during the first year program. Preliminary to admission to formal candidacy, each student must pass an examination in both the major and minor fields. Following this examination, the candidate must prepare and defend a dissertation displaying mature research in original sources, competence in assembling and presenting historical data, and a critical scholarship. Major Fields include: Early Europe, Modern Europe, Latin America, and United States. Minor fields include: any major field of concentration other than the chosen one; an approved minor in another department; or Asian history; comparative women's history; comparative/ world history.
